Course Description

This beginning Dutch language course covers both Dutch language and culture. The language part of the course helps to develop the basic skills and strategies necessary to successfully handle uncomplicated oral and written communication skills. These may occur in a variety of social situations one could encounter in daily life in the Netherlands. The main purpose of the culture and society part of the classes is to provide a basic understanding of present-day Dutch society and culture. Attention is given to various issues pertaining to Dutch culture and society today. Through culture presentations covering the culture of the Netherlands and the Dutch given by the students themselves and group discussions, students learn to understand mainly the inside perspective, in other words the Dutch way of approaching and discussing cultural and society issues. After completing this course students are able to orally communicate and understand uncomplicated speech about various topics beyond the most immediate needs; engage in basic conversation about a variety of topics such as personal history, personal experiences, study, and university life; and participate in simple conversations. After completing this course students are able to communicate and read written communication in simple texts in various general domains; and write in an uncomplicated form on a variety of familiar topics, personal topics, general events, and concrete descriptions.
