Course Description

This course provides an overview of British (not just English) history in its political, economic, social, and intellectual dimensions. Though the main structural thrust is provided by political and economic developments, emphasis is laid on the importance of placing these developments in their full context. The topics covered include the significance of the Revolution Settlement of 1689-1701; the impact - politically, economically, and socially - of war, particularly during the “long 18th century” (1689-1815); the changing role of the crown; the development of political parties; church and state; social structure and social mobility; the loss of the American colonies; agrarian change; the industrial revolution; urbanization; political and religious dissent; free trade and protection; Chartism and trade unions; Britain as an imperial power; and the Victorian administrative state.
