Course Description
The concepts of terrorism and political violence loom large in contemporary politics and policy-making but are frequently misunderstood and under-theorized. This course explores a range of approaches to terrorism and political violence. The first part of the course explores the history of terrorism and a diversity of understandings of and theoretical approaches to terrorism and political violence. The second part of the course explores a range of topics including: types and causes of terrorism, the state and terrorism, the role of religion, policy responses, and the so-called "war on terror."
