Course Description

This course provides students with a sound basis for communicating effectively and accurately in Italian. Emphasis is on the fundamentals of listening, speaking, reading, and writing. “Real-life” activities expose students to day-to-day contexts likely to be encountered outside the classroom environment reinforcing grammatical structures learned in class and increasing functional skills. Students review and complete the study of Italian grammar and are exposed to a broad spectrum of language to reinforce their written and spoken skills. In addition, students are able to read texts of a certain complexity, to give clear descriptions on various topics, and to develop their ideas. They produce clear and articulated texts on a wide array of topics and express opinions on current events, explaining pros and cons of the various options. They are engaged in individual reading, class discussion, and analysis (both written and oral) of contemporary literary texts. Out of class activities are designed to take full advantage of the city of Florence and provide opportunities for interaction and enhancement of language skills, as well as immersion in Italian culture.
