Course Description

This course enables students to delve deeper into certain issues in sub-Saharan Africa, focusing on inter-state conflict. The course looks at the state of conflict, the African Peace and Security Architecture (its conception, organs, competences, actions, and modalities of intervention); issues of the Pan African organization; the African Union, Regional Economic Communities, the United Nations and other international organizations highlight the changes and continuities of objectives achieved across different levels. Attention is paid to identifying the concrete aspects by the various actors (negotiations, mediations, peace-keeping operations) and relevant cases are presented to grasp the complex issues of conflict resolution.
