Course Description
This is a course about the interconnections between cities and literature. Students read prose fiction, poetry, and drama, exploring how various cities, including Dublin, Belfast, London, Chester, Paris, Prague, New York, Boston, Los Angeles, and San Francisco, figure in these writings and how the writers themselves interacted with the cities they lived and worked in. Because the authors and texts on the course represent a variety of historical periods, from medieval to the present, students also examine the relationship between history, politics, and the changing trends in literary representations of urban locations.
