Course Description
The course is an overview of how economic thought has risen over the centuries, and how, since World War II, it has influenced neighboring disciplines such as political philosophy, common law, political science, sociology, and psychology. This course covers globalization, free trade, growth and its possible end, the crisis, and inequalities. From Gilgamesh and Aristotle to neuroeconomics and high-frequency trading, from Tolkien's Sauron to Martin's Littlefinger, this course contextualizes contemporary debates and underlines how economics' “way of thinking” is now the dominant scheme in our lives, whether it is at individual, societal, or planetary levels.
