Course Description

This course introduces students to some of the most significant events, changes, and movements in the history of Ireland and Britain from the late centuries BC to the 10th century AD. The topics addressed include the insular Celtic migrations and settlements of the early medieval period (including the migrations from Britain to Brittany and from Ireland to Scotland, and the Irish settlements in Wales and in Man), the christianization of the West (of Ireland, of western Scotland from Ireland, and of northern England from Scotland), and the incursions, settlement, and impact of the Vikings.
