Course Description
This course provides students with holistic, interdisciplinary, and critical knowledge of systems of innovation and sustainability transitions from interdisciplinary perspectives, including economic, social, environmental, and policy perspectives. Lectures and discussions are supplemented by optional multi-method research, entrepreneurial mentoring, critical advocacy and evidence-based policy writing skills sessions. After completing this course, participants acquire working knowledge on ideas, interests, and institutions of societal relevance, and are able to design new actions or policies for change making in varieties of systems, sciences, innovations, transitions, economies, contexts, and, ultimately, on the sustainability outcomes. The course covers varieties of: systems and transitions from a global perspective (e.g. contexts and cases of high and middle/low income countries, emerging markets and powers, international cooperation in between); and systems of transitions from a human perspective (e.g. varieties of entrepreneurships and of outcomes such as agency, quality of life, well-being, happiness, peace).
