Course Description

In this course, students practice to process and present different types of text taken from the professional field (Engineering). In addition, students write texts that are typical for internship or job applications. They improve their listening skills with the use of audio and video materials as well as current materials such as the news. Students are training the following: to write texts: How do I write texts that meet the standards that are characteristic of my job; to collect information: How do I identify the most important points in written, audio, and visual information; to write down information: How do I create an excerpt; to process information: How do I pass on the contents of the excerpt in a conversation.
