Course Description

This course covers the specificities of journalism and communication. This includes some reminders about journalistic writing, rules, and deontology. The course focuses on a mainly practical approach. Students create a media together (print and/or online). The editorial line is chosen together and students define sections, subjects, angles and formats (report, interview, portrait, investigation etc.) and then begin writing, taking pictures, and bringing together all the work produced within a single website or paper to have a final team production by the end of the course.
