Course Description
The seminar focuses on Hegel's understanding of idealism based on his works FAITH AND KNOWLEDGE and DIFFERENTIAL WRITING. The course reconstructs the systematic approaches of the texts and identifies some of the core problems of German idealism. The following topics are discussed in the seminar: the role of the subject in the process of experiencing and knowing; the extent to which the experiential, objective world is independent of the subject; the appropriateness of concepts as an instrument for realizing reality and their relation to empirical experience. The analysis of the text offers an introduction to Hegel's thinking and to some of the key questions of German idealism.
