Course Description

This course develops knowledge of Czech at the intermediate level. It provides linguistic tools to enable successful communication in many situations and to facilitate better understanding of the Czech cultural and social context. By completing this course, students acquire the following knowledge and language skills: listening: students can follow basic news, general conversation, and understand announcements; reading: students can read and understand texts on familiar topics and simple news items; speaking: students can hold conversation on known topics, can answer questions about themselves, and can ask for information; writing: students can write emails and short texts on familiar topics, including PowerPoint presentations; and vocabulary: students acquire broader and more specialized vocabulary related to specific situations and topics. This course is designed for students who meet the following requirements: 1) are able to read and comprehend a simple newspaper or magazine article; 2) are able to communicate about everyday topics; 3) are able to write one page essay on familiar topics (where they live, why they want to study the Czech language, etc.); and 4) have acquired basic vocabulary and understand fundamental principles of Czech grammar (conjugation, declension, syntax, etc.).
