Course Description

The influence of technology is ubiquitous in modern life, and it is changing every day. In the foreseeable future, technology will continue to make breakthroughs and affect human life more comprehensively. However, humanistic literacy is an indispensable part to demonstrate the value of science and technology. Humanistic-based science and technology can meet the exact needs of human beings, thereby enhancing their well-being. This course discusses how to connect technological development and humanistic literacy to create greater value together.
