Course Description
The course provides an overview over some of the most important aspects of Nazi Germany – covering political, cultural, social, and military history. The course provides insights into one of the darkest, most disturbing and most formative periods of modern European history. The course pays particular attention to different and conflicting interpretations of how the Third Reich came into being and why Hitler's dictatorship proved to be one of the most murderous in history. Particular attention is paid to racial thinking, the Holocaust and the question of European collaboration with the Nazis. The course improves students' capacity to engage with historical interpretations and different methodological approaches.
