Course Description

This course introduces students to medieval literature, and presents both the diversity of literature written between 1150 and 1550 and its distinctive qualities. Students study a selection of texts including some of Chaucer's CANTERBURY TALES, SIR GAWAIN, and THE GREEN KNIGHT, medieval drama, romance, and court poetry; religious writing, lyrics and travel writing may also feature. Students learn to read and translate Middle English, but also read some texts in the other languages of medieval Britain in translation, and study texts by both male and female writers. Students learn to analyze medieval poetry and prose, and gain an understanding of medieval modes of writing, genres and meters.
