Course Description

This abbreviated language course provides students without prior course work or those who have basic knowledge of the language with an introduction to Spanish language skills; students with prior language experience are provided the opportunity to improve upon their oral, written, and reading comprehension skills. All students begin with an intensive week covering basic forms of grammar and vocabulary specific to topics discussed in the program. Students are then organized into similar levels for the subsequent review classes that continue grammar and vocabulary instruction, and also incorporate readings from texts focused on human rights topics.
