Course Description

This is a Norwegian language course on the intermediate level for international students. The subject builds on skills and knowledge acquired in NORINT0110 or the equivalent. The classes strongly emphasize the students' oral activity, both when understanding and speaking are concerned. The students build on basic grammar and, in addition, acquire knowledge about language variations, idiomatic expressions, and logical relations. Students demonstrate they are able to use this knowledge when writing. Topics and vocabulary are from texts related to Norwegian culture, topics of current interest in Norwegian society, and from students' study situation. After having completed the course, students are able to understand oral and written presentations on topics covered in the course. The students are able to talk about these topics and take the initiative and express their own opinions in conversations. Students are able to write coherent texts about topics covered in the course, and they are able to explain and justify opinions tied to these topics.
