Course Description

This course provides students with an understanding of how families matter in children's development. The course examines theory, research and applied perspectives on the family as a context for children's development. The course aims to provide students with knowledge of research and theoretical advances on the relations between child development, and family processes, parenting, and diverse family structures. The course covers topics such as parent-child relationships, marital conflict and divorce, single, step- and same-sex parenting. Research on these topics is considered within a framework that takes account of developmental processes and broader socio-cultural contexts
