Course Description
Narrative poetics looks at how narratives are made and how this produces the effects of what they say. The seminar takes a close look at the different systematic chapters of narrative poetics such as mood, voice, order, duration, frequency, but also event, character, description etc. and puts them to the test in close readings exploring their applicability and usefulness in the analysis of narratives in English. Participants are invited to familiarize themselves with the terminology of narrative poetics by browsing the entries in the Hamburg University living handbook of narratology.
