Course Description

This course analyzes the legal and political issues raised by the development and functioning of intergovernmental organizations in the globalized world. Since the end of twentieth century, however, the term “globalization” has been an all-purpose catchword not only in public opinion but also in scholarly debate. Today, it is impossible to understand world affairs without grasping the contemporary phenomenon of globalization. But, what is globalization? What are its main issues? This course conceptualizes globalization and its diverse dimensions such as political, economic, cultural, ideological, and environmental. Parallel with the discussion of these dimensions, different organizations including the World Trade Organization (WTO), the International Monetary Fund (IMF), the International Labor Organization (ILO), the United Nations (UN), the European Union (EU), the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) are examined.
