Course Description
This class takes students on a linguistic journey through the old and new Berlin and gets them acquainted with unique Berlin characters and other Berlin peculiarities as well as the Berlin dialect's use of irony. It explores the mentality of the Ur-Berliner, their charm and spot-on wit, encounters personalities significant for the history of the capital, and covers many of Berlin's annual events. Students develop speech, vocabulary, and grammar as well as simple moderation techniques on the basis of cultural topics about Berlin. The focus of the course is short presentations and the moderation of the subsequent discussion by pairs of students.
