Course Description
This course builds on the skills developed in intermediate Vietnamese. Students progress from reading selections from passages to a more sustained and systematic encounter with the nature of language used in novels, newspapers, the Internet, and other forms of popular publications, official public discourse, academic writings, and business Vietnamese. Students learn to comprehend texts from background and subject matter knowledge and from increasing control of language. They also learn to handle conversations involving complication, in the form of connected discourse, and to make choices of diction, as well as manipulate grammatical features reflecting formal and informal registers.
