Course Description

This course is designed for beginners with basic knowledge of German. It focuses on encounters with various written, spoken and audio-visual texts and exchanges with other course participants. Students continue to develop and expand basic competencies in listening, speaking, reading and writing, and their understanding of German culture while being enabled to learn reflectively and strategically. The course addresses cultural, political, and historical aspects of the city of Berlin and the German-speaking countries, which students analyze and compare with their own background and experiences. At the end of the course, students are able to deal with various everyday situations (in a German-speaking environment) and engage in simple conversations. Students develop reading strategies to understand short newspaper articles and literary texts. In addition, students improve their essay writing skills, and are able to write short texts on various topics and revise and proofread them. Finally students are able to understand more detailed discussions on familiar topics.
