Course Description

This course explores the ancient Greek world through its material culture, covering a time span from the collapse of Mycenaean palatial cultures through to the Classical period. The approach is thematic and topics may include state (polis) formation, colonization and cultural interaction in the Mediterranean, the development of Greek sanctuaries, the archaeology of the Greek countryside, the social and political roles of art and architecture in Archaic and Classical Athens, gender and sexuality, death and society, and archaeology and modern politics.

On successful completion of this module, students should be able to:

- Demonstrate sound geographical knowledge of the Greek world
- Apply visual and spatial skills to the analysis of artefacts, architectural plans and other archaeological diagrams.
- Demonstrate knowledge of primary sources (archaeological, artistic, textual) relevant to the module topics.
- Evaluate the major theoretical approaches, debates and scholarship relevant to the module topics.
- Discuss the above, both orally and in written form, in a clear and scholarly manner.
- Work effectively in small groups.
