Course Description
In this course, students learn to develop and film their own creative projects for the screen. Students are encouraged to explore and experiment with the medium, and to further develop their own creative interests. Students are challenged to bring some of the techniques they have explored in film analysis to their creative work – translating the theory into practice. They have the opportunity to learn more advanced practical skills through participation in film- making activities and to develop skills and understanding through lectures, exercises, and hands-on workshop-based activities.
