Course Description
The course introduces students to various migration and integration issues in Scandinavia within the context of anthropology. The course introduces students to migration and the Scandinavian countries as ethnographic fields. The interconnectedness of these fields is explored through various anthropological research areas such as identity, religion, medical anthropology, policy, and the welfare state using Danish, Swedish, and Norwegian ethnography on immigration and integration. Through this courses students are able to identify and formulate central anthropological questions within the subject of migration and integration in a Scandinavian context.
