Course Description
In this course, students undertake a primary source-based project linked to a special topic in history. The project is supervised by the Special Topic Tutor and is assessed through a 4000-word project produced at the conclusion of the course. The assessment of this course is based entirely on the final paper. Students receive guidance from their supervisors in individual meetings, including initial discussions about their prospective topics, guidance meetings, email advice, and feedback following the completion of the project.
