Course Description
The course studies the socioeconomic impact of disasters on the well-being of people and communities. The focus of the course is on major disasters such as earthquakes, tsunamis, floods, landslides, fire, terrorism, and nuclear accidents. It provides an analysis of the hazards, risks, and roles and responsibilities of state and private agencies in responding to disasters and recovery work. Topics include early protection by social welfare measures such as social insurance; disaster education and financial planning; emergency center management with a focus on welfare provision; and rehabilitation programs for disaster victims and their communities after an incident.
