Course Description
This course approaches video art as it unites a great variety of practices regarding time-based manifestations of abiding artistic concerns. Students take a studio-based approach to the production of video art works, including video installation, single channel and synchronized multichannel artworks, streaming video, and video as it appears in other digital forms. Students produce original artworks that forge new image worlds and innovative production methodologies. This course is conducted in an open studio framework including a variety of workshops, studios, and digital labs.
