Course Description

This course introduces global economic history from the eighteenth century to the present. It mainly focuses on economic interactions between the West (namely, Western Europe and the United States) and other parts of the world. The course traces European activities in extra-European worlds in the process of economic globalisation, but it also sheds light on non-European actors in Africa and Asia to make it easier to understand that their agencies formed a part of the emergence and remaking of the modern global economy. Topics include industrialization, de-industrialisation, slavery, colonialism, tropical development, energy, and the environment. Assessment: exam, class participation.
