Course Description

This course introduces students to the history of the world from 1780 to 1900. It focuses on the idea of modernity, following four major themes that help explain the making of the modern world: War and Empire; the Material World; Politics and Revolution; and Societies and Cultures. A series of chronologically organized lectures and seminars address significant events, topics, and concepts relating to the history of Britain, Europe, and other world regions. This course asks students to think thematically over time; to detect connections and contrasts between phenomena in different places; to recognize that all regions of the world have complex histories; and to develop a world historical imagination.
