COURSE DETAIL

MAKING THE IRISH LANDSCAPE
Country Ireland
Host Institution University College Dublin
Program(s) Irish Universities,University College Dublin
UCEAP Course Level Upper Division
UCEAP Subject Area(s) Archaeology
UCEAP Course Number 102
UCEAP Course Suffix
UCEAP Official Title MAKING THE IRISH LANDSCAPE
UCEAP Transcript Title IRISH LANDSCAPE
UCEAP Quarter Units 4.00
UCEAP Semester Units 2.70

Course Description
This course combines the distinct but complementary methods and approaches of geography, archaeology, and history to explore the evolution of the Irish landscape from the arrival of the first people on the island to the present. Throughout this course, students investigate the ways in which thousands of years of interaction between humans and their environment has given form to modern Irish rural and urban landscapes. Students explore the creation and alteration of landscapes by people through time and examine the ways in which these continue to structure the modern landscape which we inhabit or visit today. While the course is primarily focused on Ireland, a comparative perspective is used to highlight key similarities and differences with other landscapes. The course includes a one-day field trip to the remarkable and iconic landscape of Glendalough, Co. Wicklow, which allows students to directly consider and apply the various perspectives introduced within the course.

Language(s) of Instruction
English

Host Institution Course Number
LSOC10010

Host Institution Course Title
MAKING THE IRISH LANDSCAPE

Host Institution Course Details

Host Institution Campus
UC Dublin

Host Institution Faculty

Host Institution Degree

Host Institution Department
Landscapes and Society

Course Last Reviewed

Print