Course Description
This course develops visual sensibility and graphic skills in visual communication. The course covers three knowledge and skill areas. The study of drawing gives confidence using different drawing media and develops a high level of hand-eye coordination. The study of drawing systems introduces basic principles and methods of pictorial projection systems and their application in drawing, visual study and design. The study of form introduces various visual elements and their interrelationships, such as shape, space, mass, light, texture and color.
