Course Description
This class analyzes the relationship between the Ottoman Empire (Islamic) and sixteenth century Europe (Protestants/Catholics). During this dynamic time period the Protestant Reformation takes place as well as the encroachment of the Ottoman Empire onto the European continent, and the class examines how they influence each other. Various texts show the viewpoints of Europeans during this time on the Ottoman Empire and the danger that it posed. The impact on the Reformation and the development of modern Europe is also discussed in depth during this class.
