Course Description

This course examines country and culture of Japan using food as its analytic focal point. In the section on historical, political, and economic perspectives, the course uncovers the ways that food in Japan influences state policies, creates international conflicts, and contributes to the formation of national identity. The section on socio-cultural perspectives evaluates the ways that food creates meaning in such realms as language, education, media programming, and religious practices. Concepts covered in this course are applicable to a broad range of phenomenon outside of Japan and outside the topic of food.
