Course Description
This course examines the evolution of environmental concern in Ireland, in a comparative sociological perspective. The course looks at the formation of voluntary organizations, the construction of a state apparatus for environmental protection, and the key changes in environmental concern up to the 1980s. The course focuses specifically on recent developments in social theory regarding the relationship between culture and nature. In particular, the course explores the basis of environmental controversy in Ireland, in the context of broader changes in attitudes towards nature.
