Course Description
This course offers a panoramic view of Chile's political, cultural and social trajectory in the nineteenth century, with special emphasis on the Independence, liberal republicanism, the figure of Portals and order, the University of Chile, the struggle of parliamentarianism against presidential authoritarianism, civil wars against Chile's neighbors, and the late-century changes leading to the 1891 conflict. There is particular attention given to the various historiographic interpretations of the nineteenth century. Note: Similar course is offered at a different faculty/campus location.
