Course Description

The goal of this seminar is to understand how opinion is formed and to analyze how this opinion, once formed, can play on political, economic, social and foreign policy decisions. The course looks at all the elements that contribute to how the citizen and/or the employee forms their opinion and how this affects the entity, the political, economic or social actors. Should one follow opinions or can one resist when one is in a position of responsibility? The discussions treat all the facets of opinion and their influence on decision-making, as much as conforming to it as distancing oneself from it.
