Course Description

The course examines the foundations of Latin American political thought and how it has influenced the governmental systems that are in place today. The course analyzes the contributions of the most outstanding Latin American political thinkers from the nineteenth to the early twenty-first century. It identifies the evolution of ideas, concepts and worldview of the masters of political thought in the region and recognizes the main debates that shaped the history of political thought. Specifically, the course looks into prominent Latin American political thinkers like Simon Bolívar, Jose Martí, Fidel Castro, Salvador Allende and Eugenio María de Hostos.
