Course Description

This course examines Japanese writing as it is used in real life situations. Students are required to write in Japanese about various topics and learn to compose in sophisticated and more effective format. Emphasis is placed on correct language use and formality appropriate for each situation. It consists of weekly 1000-word assignments in Japanese. Skills needed to write on various themes in appropriate styles are taught. This class is discussion-intensive, with quizzes throughout the semester as well. Assessment: class attendance, participation, and homework assignments.
