Course Description

This course provides a systematic account of German history in the 20th century. It analyzes the major developments in society, politics, culture, and economy which have shaped modern Germany. Students reflect on contemporary issues in Germany, on the burden of the German past, and on the place of Germany in Europe. The course covers the origins and consequences of World War I, the challenges facing the Weimar republic, Hitler's rise, the National Socialist Regime, World War II, and the Holocaust. Students examine the Allied occupation, Germany's division into two states on opposing sides of the Cold War, the Westernization of the West and Sovietization of the East, and the unexpected reunification of Germany.
