Course Description
This course explores the history of New York City and its people. It examines the city's physical expansion from the slums of lower Manhattan to Central Park and the rise of the skyscraper; the emergence of the city's elite and efforts to cope with poverty, disease, and crime; and marginal groups, from European immigrants and African Americans to gay subcultures and countercultures. Students explore how marginal groups such as European immigrants, African Americans, gay subcultures, and countercultures made the city their home.
