Course Description

With increased trade and deeper market integration, the legal issues of international economic relations are becoming more complicated. The World Trade Organization (WTO) is the only and the most important institution addressing the rules of trade between nations. The WTO agreements cover goods, services, intellectual property and dispute settlement. This course is designed to introduce the major legal disciplines under the WTO legal system. Assessment: class participation (30%), group presentation (30%), final exam(40%).
