Course Description
This course is based on role-playing. Students take a specific role in their company and collaborate with the other managers in order to run the business, through Rialto, an online business game on global supply chain management. With Rialto students have a complete view of the relationship between supply chain decisions and company's results; they experience the complexity of functional versus process decisions and face competition among different firms and players. The business game develops over 12 runs (each run lasts 50 minutes) that correspond to 12 months of the scenario. In each run students have to take a set of supply chain decisions. Students complete assignments regarding strategy and performance analysis.
