Course Description

This course introduces students to the nature, types, structure, and dynamics of international conflicts as well as the mechanisms used in addressing them. It explores the conflict behavior of states at the international arena, the impact of such behavior, and the likely conflict resolution mechanisms needed to address them. Also, the course keeps students abreast with post-conflict peace building strategies; the role of international institutions such as the International Criminal Court, the International Court of Justice, and ad-hoc tribunals in addressing human rights violations during periods of transitions and the general role of culture in these endeavors.
