Course Description

This course takes a sociolinguistic approach to English communication in the 21st century. It provides understanding of concepts, theories, and skills of global communication across people with different social, linguistic, and cultural backgrounds, and further explores the relationship of these concepts, theories, and skills with both English language teaching (ELT) and English-medium instruction (EMI). Other topics covered include English as a Multilingua Franca, Conceptualizing a global language, and intercultural communication.
