Course Description
The course focuses on the history of what is now the Czech Republic (Bohemia and Moravia) from the primeval times to the present. The periods covered in the course include prehistoric times, medieval Czech state, early modern ages, Bohemian Crownlands under the Habsburg Monarchy, Czechoslovakia, and the Czech Republic. The course takes into consideration the historical geographical context of Central Europe. The course also covers the history of the inhabitants of this territory (ancient prehistoric cultures; Celtic, Germanic, and Slavic tribes; and Czechs, Germans, Jews, Slovaks, and others) as well as a description of the general features of their political, social, and cultural life. The basics of Central European history are included, especially those related to periods when historical events of Bohemia and Moravia were closely connected to the contemporary international situation.
