Course Description
This course combines knowledge from the fields of urban sociology, general sociology, and urbanism in order to provide detailed insight into the Czech urban situation. The course discusses topics including an introduction to the field of urban sociology, how cities work from the sociological perspective, and specific information about Czech cities. The second part of the course includes a short commented film trip to a smaller town near Prague, an in class talk by an urban professional such as a planner, and students' presentations focused on the comparison of the cities of their origin and Prague. Students submit a paper, which is discussed during the semester and is gradually presented by students in a short form of reports on their projects.
