Course Description
This course enhances students' theoretical understandings and practical competences in mainly developing curriculum and partly in constructing assessment tools relevant for the curriculum. Students read a variety of readings mostly written in English dealing with diverse aspects of school curriculum. Even though the primary language of this course is English, it focuses on issues and challenges within the context of Korean education. In addition to readings, students join various activities such as discussions, group activities, and presentations. Assessment: attendance and participation (15%), weekly journal entries (15%), midterm paper (30%), final paper and presentation (40%).
